Connected with this question are Connected with this question are many others which are closely akin to it. They involve the problem as to how the government is going to deal with its great industrial corporations and great railroad and carrier corporations. They involve also the problem of enforced competition or regulated monopoly or a regulated competition midway between the two extremes.

A lot of talk is heard just now about "putting teeth into the Sherman law." But there is nothing definite about the nature of the operations which are to be performed.

Urge Prison Sentences. In any event, congress is going to be called on this winter to decide what to do about it. In both house and sen-ate there will be strong demand for legislation which will require the prison sentence to be imposed when a man is found guilty of violating the criminal parts of the Sherman law.

There is a large proportion of native population which appears to be kenely alive to the necessity of bringing present conditions to an end and which looks on intervention as the only relief in sight.

Believe U. S. is Bluffing.

Mexican officials here seem to be convinced that the United States is bluffing and are quoted as stating that they are satisfied there will be no armed interference with their affairs.

A singular fact noticeable here, and much commented on by foreign residents, is the continued absence of any anti-American spirit among the Mexican populace. The efforts of certain native newspapers to stir up such feeling have met with little success. AT HUERTA'S HANDS Calls on American Minister for Conference - Britain

Backs Mr. Wilson. ONDON, ENGLAND, Nov. 18 .-Highly important developments bearing directly on Gen. Isserta's last stand against the United States transpired here yesterday. American ambassader W. H. Page and Sir Edward Grey had an important conference at the foreign office, but the feature of the day was an entirely unexpected conference between Mr. Page and lord Cowdray at the American embassy. Lord Cowdray as he explained later to The Herald's correspondent, decided to take the bull by the borns, fire back the criticisms aimed at the off companies and explain his position to the American people. HUERTA'S DAYS NUMBERED.

His conference with Mr. Page to present his case to the American government caused a decided stir in financial and official circles, for, with an understanding between Cowdray and the United States government, the prospect of the days or hours of Huerta's power in Mexico are considered numbered.

As might be expected, Cowdray in committing himself on his Mexican attitude without seeing a course ahead that will leave his vast interest unfeopardized, is turning his back on Huerta and going against the buzzanw or steam roller, but he says he is not going to be entired into supporting Huerta for concessions which th Mexican congress may offer despite warnings from president Wilson that such congressional action will be considered valueless by the United States.

It now develops that Condray's visit to the embansy was linked with the determination of the British government to support the United States in considering the acts of the new Mexican congress all and wold Lord Cowdray has his interests taken care of and feels that he is better able to present the financial and commercial paspect of this case than it could be presented by an intermediary of dip-

There will be no panicky exodus of citizens from Juarez. A number of Juarez families nacked their household goods after the battle Saturday and attempted to come Lord Cowdray received The Herald correspondent last evening but deelined to answer the direct question: "Do you concur in president Wilson's stand that all acts by the new congress shall be considered void."
